Benefits Therapy Dogs Provide

Therapy dog work isn't done with words ... It's far more powerful than any words you can use.

A therapy dog can favorably influence the people living in a facility and the staff that looks after them by providing social stimulation, and physical activity, by getting people together and out of there rooms.

Therapy dogs often help people overcome depression. When a dog comes in Suddenly the day isn't boring.

Therapy dogs can help people by meeting the universal need for physical touch, frequently awakening special memories fondly recalled.

Therapy dogs often help people without anyone knowing exactly how.
